ABSTRACT

This report, the thirteenth edition, lists over 2,000 colleges and universities in the United States, Canada, Mexico, and Central America which offer college level courses in physics or astronomy. The listings of the institutions and their personnel are arranged geographically by state in the body of the Directory. There is also an alphabetical index of the institutions and of the approximately 10,000 academic physicists and astronomers. (Author/TS)

AMERICAN INSTITUTE OF PHYSICS

SE 013 219

The AMERICAN INSTITUTE OF PHYSICS was founded in 1931 as a federation of leading societies in the field of physics. It combines into one operating agency those functions on behalf of physics which can best be done by the societies jointly. Its purpose is the advancement and diffusion of the knowledge of physics and its application to human welfare.

To this end the Institute publishes scientific journals devoted wholly or mainly to physics and related sciences and conducts research in information systems; serves the public by making available to the press and other channels of public information reliable communications on physics and its progress; carries on a comprehensive program aimed at strengthening education at all levels; encourages and assists in the documentation and study of the history and philosophy of recent physics; cooperates with local, national, and international organizations devoted to physics; and fosters the relations of the science of physics to other sciences and to the arts and industries.

The physicists represented by the Institute number almost 50,000 members of its member societies. In addition, approximately 5,000 students in about 450 colleges and universities are members of the Institute's Society of Physics Students, which includes the honor society component Sigma Pi Sigma.

Programs of the EDUCATION DIVISION are organized to respond to identified needs at all levels of physics education. They include gathering and dissemination of information about physics education, assistance to teachers and advisors through consulting services and the visiting scientists programs as well as through its publication of career booklets, directories and collections of information on graduate programs, college offerings, and resources for physics departments.

Programs of the MANPOWER DIVISION are organized to obtain and disseminate information about training, supply of and demand for physics manpower and to assist in the job placement process. To these ends, it surveys physicists at all levels--from undergraduate student to senior working physicists and has collected the information for the National Register. It also maintains a year-round Placement Office, operates a placement register at major meetings, and operates for The American Physical Society a pool to exchange information about postdoctoral candidates and positions.

FOREWORD

The Directory of Physics and Astronomy Faculties in North American Colleges and Universities, 1971-1972 is an updated version of a document which has proved useful to college and university physicists and astronomers and those who communicate with them. This edition is the thirteenth in the series begun with the encouragement of the American Association of Physics Teachers and originally supported in part by the program of the National Register of Scientific and Technical Personnel. Originally including only physicists in colleges and universities in the United States, the Directory now includes physicists and astronomers in all of North America, Central America, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands and Guam. The total number listed is approximately 13,000.

We hope this edition will prove as useful in its new format as have its predecessors. If errors appear and are called to our attention, we shall correct our records in order to eliminate repeating the errors in future editions. Other suggestions for improvements in the content or format will be gratefully received.

October 1971 H. William Koch

INTRODUCTION

This edition of the Directory includes a number of new features. Perhaps most important is the fact that this information is now recorded on magnetic tape so that it will be relatively easy to perform statistical analyses on the characteristics of academic institutions and their physics and astronomy members. Also the data can now be more easily kept current. We have also made a serious effort this year to include individuals who teach physics or astronomy even though they are members of an academic department other than a department of physics or astronomy. Finally, our information on the highest degree offered in astronomy and the extent to which individuals split their time among physics, astronomy, and related fields is more complete than ever before.

Institutions are listed alphabetically under the appropriate state or country, and these, in turn, are listed alphabetically (see the Table of Contents to determine the page on which each new section begins). At the top of each listing is the name and address of the institution, and in parentheses following this, two symbols (see the key below) which characterize the institution. Next appears the name of the department whose faculty members are listed, and in parentheses following this are symbols (see the key below) which indicate the nature of the program offered in physics, astronomy, or a related field (e.g., physical science or biophysics). The telephone number of the campus switchboard and the extension of the department are also included.

The individual faculty members are then listed alphabetically by last name, and their ranks are given as well as special titles such as Chairman (abbreviated Chm.) or Dean. After some of the names are symbols (see key below) in parentheses; these provide two kinds of information: (1) they indicate those individuals who spend part time or full time teaching something besides physics; (2) they mark those individuals who will be on leave during part or all of the academic year.

Alabama A. & M. is a publicly supported university offering a bachelor's degree in physics. The chairman of the department is Howard J. Foster who teaches physics full time and is a full professor. Arnold Dean, an assistant professor, divides his time between physics and a related field. M. C. George, an associate professor, is on leave during the fall term.

As listed in the Table of Contents, the book contains, in addition to the main listings described above, both an alphabetical index of the institutions included in the main listings and an alphabetical index of the individuals included in the main listings. The former ones will speed your search for any institution of interest; the latter will enable you to locate the address of an individual even when you do not know his institution.

For some institutions no faculty are listed even though most of them had had faculty entries in previous editions. In these cases, no questionnaires had been returned to AIP by the middle of September, virtually at press time. Accordingly, we were faced with a choice of listing no one on the faculty or of printing a list that might well have been 30% to 100% wrong; we opted for the former.
